Reflections of an Intercessor

The babbling brook would lose its song if you removed the rocks.

Looking back over HSI's 10-year history, my perspective as Director of Prayer is unique. I am most excited about how the Lord intervened in projects to showcase His power in response to prayer!

Many of our HSI projects take place in hostile environments, "under the radar", amid an atmosphere of fear or even outright persecution. No matter how well we plan or organize, obstacles occur.

There are rocks in the stream!

- venues cancel, government permissions denied
- anticipated preparations fall through, people counted on are suddenly unavailable
- visas denied, flights delayed, schedules disrupted
- equipment malfunctions
- illness

An email or phone call comes saying PLEASE PRAY.

This gives opportunity for our intercessors to become vitally involved in the project.

The water isn't stopped by the rocks.

The results? We come running to God in dependence on Him. We are driven to our knees to better understand His ways. He brings about something better (which He had in mind all along) to showcase His power. We cross paths unexpectedly with key people to meet a need. We find unexpected musical treasures. Our faith and confidence in Him grows. Our peace and joy increase as we rest in Him. He gives us opportunities to speak of His Greatness both at home and abroad.

The stream breaks out in a mighty song of praise!
The bigger the rocks, the louder the song!

Since Heart Sounds International began 10 years ago, God has directed us through 68 projects in 33 different countries. Without exception, God has never failed. We are overjoyed with the invitation to “partner” with God in raising the unique worship from many nations in the heart sounds of people.

We can't wait to see what God is inviting us to join Him in doing in 2010!

In celebration,

Jolene Wilson
Director for Prayer
Heart Sounds International
